Colombian and Venezuelan labor leaders have been carrying on a steady personal correspondence since the Venezuelan military coup of November 1949. They have attempted to effect a closer cooperation between the Confederacion de Trabajadores de Colombia (Confederation of Colombian Workers - CTO) and the Confederacion de Trabajadores Venezolanos (Confederation of Venezuelan Workers - CTV.) The principal topics discussed were the failure of Venezuelan workers to forestall the uprising and methods of preventing similar coups in the future. Free exchange of labor information and plans was advocated.
